

Abteilung für Asiatische und Islamische Kunstgeschichte WS 2015/16

Vortrag

Dr. Daniela De Simone

(Affiliated Fellow of the International Institute for Asian Studies (IIAS), Leiden):

Beyond Stupas and Pillars: The Urban Revolution of the Mauryas

Mo., 09.11.2015

Beginn: 18:15

Abteilung für Asiatische und Islamische Kunstgeschichte,
Adenauerallee 10, ÜR (EG)

Dr. Daniela De Simone obtained her PhD in South Asian Studies from L’Orientale, University of Naples in 2012. Her thesis focused on the archaeology of Pataliputra, capital of the Mauryan Empire. Dr. De Simone worked at the Ashokan site of Gotihawa as a member of the Italian Archaeological Mission to Nepal, and was a consultant for the “Historic Districts for All” initiative of UNESCO New Delhi. She is currently engaged in a re-assessment of Mauryan material culture.

Details can be found at: <http://www.iias.nl/profile/daniela-de-simone>

Dr. De Simone’s presentation will analyse the archaeological evidence emerged at Mauryan urban sites across the Ganga Valley.

